Clinique Almost Spring

Review by Emily Hirschmann

The only way that I manage to scrape through the gloom of January and February is the thought that spring is almost here, and it would seem that Clinique feel the same. February sees the launch of their fabulous new makeup range, Almost Spring and it's certainly something to smile about.

With a breezy new pallet of soft spring colours Clinique have all that you need to achieve that fresh-faced renewed look, so in keeping with the season. The range comprises light and super-hydrating Moisture Surge Tinted Moisturiser (available in six shades for £21.00), Blushwear Cream Stick (£20.00 limited edition, so get in quick) to add a gentle flush to your complexion, Naturally Glossy Mascara (£15.00) in a fabulous non-clumping formula, creamy Quickliner for Intense Eyes (£13.50) and Black Honey-inspired Almost Lipstick, a sheer-smooth lipbalm/lipstick amalgam (16.00).

The colour trend is designed to bring out the very best of you, enhancing natural tones with delicate tints and a light dewy finish, creating a look that is unflinchingly becoming, particularly for the quintessential English Rose. The key word here is subtlety.

Presented in stylish fuss-free packaging, these cosmetics are über portable and a joy to use, being simple to apply and super comfortable to wear.

As with all Clinique products, the Almost Spring Range is fragrance-free, oil-free, allergy, ophthalmologist and dermatologist tested and non-comodegenic (they won't block your pores), so you can experiment with your new look with confidence.

Clinique's Almost Spring range will be available to purchase from February 1st 2012. To buy online, visit www.clinique.co.uk or visit your local Clinique counter.
